Looking at "Japan" from the UK — The Role of the Sainsbury Institute in the Global Dissemination of Japanese Arts and Cultures

7 Jun [Fri], 2024 18:30–20:00 (doors open at 18:00)

The Sainsbury Institute for the Study of Japanese Arts and Cultures was established in Norwich, England, in 1999 aiming to enhance cultural exchanges between the UK and Japan, facilitating in-depth research and understanding of Japanese arts, culture, and history. Over the past quarter-century, the Institute has served as a portal to Japan within the UK, playing a pivotal role in introducing and disseminating Japanese art and culture both nationally and internationally.

Since 2013, the Ishibashi Foundation has continuously supported the Sainsbury Institute to organize international lectures in Japan and projects to foster young researchers. In this lecture, as the Sainsbury Institute for the Study of Japanese Arts and Cultures nears its 25th anniversary, Dr. Matsuba will aim to reflect on its achievements while acknowledging the necessity for new approaches to cultural dissemination and educational transformation in the context of international exchanges between Japan and the UK.
